

TATA STEEL

THE ARCHITECT OF INDIA'S FIRST STEEL PLANT

The TISCO (now Tata Steel) was established in 1907 and is the first Indian steel plant. It was founded by Sir Purendranath Thakurji on April 25, 1907. The construction work started in December 1914 and the plant was inaugurated by Sir Purendranath Thakurji on February 25, 1919.

Under the leadership of Sir Purendranath Thakurji, the first Indian steel plant was established in 1907. The plant was founded by Sir Purendranath Thakurji on April 25, 1907. The construction work started in December 1914 and the plant was inaugurated by Sir Purendranath Thakurji on February 25, 1919. The plant was the first of its kind in India and it played a significant role in the development of the Indian steel industry.